Facelift: Chicago State Style

A groundbreaking ceremony for the estimated $20 million new student union and student residence hall at Chicago State University took place on Monday, April 25 at 11 a.m., north of the university's Athletics Building.

Governor Jim Edgar, Mayor Richard Daley and State Senator Emil Jones, the Senate Democratic leader, were among a number of dignitaries who attended the function.

Designed by Harry Weese Associates, construction work on the two buildings began May 2. The residence hall, designed as a quad-like courtyard building, will be ready by Fall 1995 and will accommodate approximately 360 students. The two-story "L" shaped student center featuring a rotunda, will house student organizations, academic support programs, and conference facilities.

A spokesperson for the architects stated that the two buildings will incorporate African American ornaments, including symbolic geometric shapes. Chicago interior architect Eva Maddox and two renowned CSU art professors, Ausbra Ford and Marva Jolly made significant contributions for the buildings to reflect African American heritage.

"The two facilities will signify a new era of progress and achievement for Chicago State University as we approach the 21st century and, in turn, boost the area's economic development," said President Dolores Cross.

"We are proud of our new landmark toward student success and achievement which will tremendously open the way for business growth and job opportunities. Having a residential campus will provide a wealth of economic development opportunities in the community."

Cross also stated that the "new residence hall complex is another way for CSU to improve its retention because it will create a learning center for students."

"When viewed together, the new facilities create a new student center on campus which will offer both a new focal point for student activity and a new dimension to student life," added Larry Cannon, vice president for Administrative Affairs, and key administrator for the project development. "Together, these facilities are expected to play an important role in promoting student retention and academic success."

Student Dormitory Building

The two-story Student Center will cover 62,400 square ft. and will be centrally located on campus. A unique and versatile feature of the student center will be a rotunda, a 90 foot circular space at the center of the building. "This open, two-story, skylit area will be used as a lounge, gallery, or as a theater seating up to 300 guests," Cannon stated.

The center will also have meeting rooms for conferences, recreation rooms, study areas, student activity office space.

The three-story student residence hall is being built near the Athletics Building and will cover an area of 67,100 sq. ft. "Resident security is a primary design consideration with a single main entrance to maximize control, and card access only at other ground floor doors."

Study lounges are included at building corners to allow resident interaction. Ground level facilities include a laundry room, group activity room, and bike room with secure outdoor space. Additionally, the residence hall will provide a summer occupancy alternative for CSU students and housing for participants in the University's Upward Bound summer preparatory program for Chicago area pre-college students.

Touching on the socio-economic impact of the project, Cannon said it will boost the area's economic development "in the true sense."

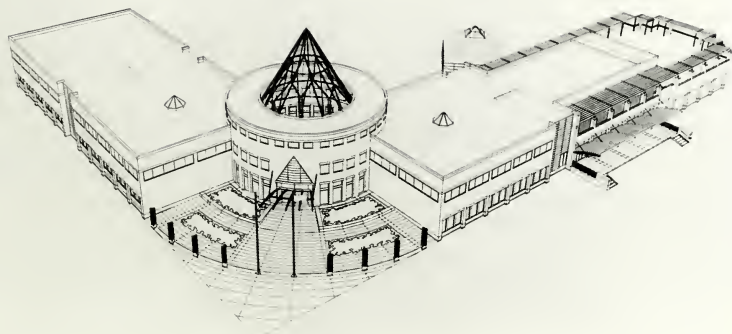

Cannon said the new focus is now on how to turn the Robinson University Center into a community center.

"There is a need for community involvement and input to determine what kind of services will be needed at such a center," he said.

About $6 million is needed for total renovation of the Robinson University Center into a community center. "We are looking for sources of revenue for the project," Cannon said.

Under current plans, the Book Store and the Child Care will continue to be housed at the RUC when it becomes a Community Center.

Another important renovation/addition, is the CSU Greenhouse, located at the south end of the Williams Science Center is near completion.

are encouraged to attend.

On November 22, Dr. Dolores Cross gave a speech on campus security. She stated that "campus security is the university's top priority." She also stated that "campus safety is important for the retention and success of students."

Dr. Cross and CSU Security Chief Albert Chesser expressed their feelings that communication is part of better security on our campus. They both said that we must let them know what is going on around the campus.

At the campus safety meeting several pieces of literature were passed out detailing what has been done, what's currently in progress, and what will be done in the future to increase campus safety and security.

A question and answer session was held at the end of Dr. Cross' speech. One of the questions asked involved the whereabouts of the call boxes in case of an emergency. Suggestions were also made regarding improvements for increased safety and security.

At the close of the meeting, Dr. Cross promised the students that there will be campus security and safety meetings on a regular basis.

Hispanic Heritage Month

Bishop Placido Rodriguez, a Mexican-American spoke to CSU students, Friday, October 8, 1994 at 1:00 p.m. in the RUC Dining Room B. He spoke about the role of churches in the empowerment and the building of Latino Communities. Bishop Rodriguez is the first Hispanic bishop of the Archdiocese of Chicago, the first in the entire Midwest and the Claretian Bishop in the United States and Mexico.

As a child his parents gave him a good foundation in church life. His father spent his life in defense of the Catholic Church. He came from Mexico to the United States as a child, and continued his education at St. Francis of Assisi Parish grammar school. Bishop Rodriguez continued to pursue his interest in the ministry when he entered the minor seminary at St. Jude's Seminary High School in Mokena, Illinois. St. Jude's Seminary was staffed by the Claretian Missionaries, a missionary community of priests and brothers. Throughout those years, he learned English and became aware of the new culture. He continued to pursue his ministry and completed his college education at Claretian College Seminary in Calabasas, California. While in California he applied for citizenship and became a U.S. citizen on March 5, 1964. Later, he received other degrees: S.T.B., S.T.L. and M.A. in Urban Studies.

He was ordained to the priesthood on Ascension Thursday, May 23, 1968 in the De Andries Seminary Chapel in Lemont, Illinois. After his ordination, he held various other positions as assistant in Our Lady of Guadalupe Parish and National Shrine of St. Jude; pastoral ministry at Our Lady of Guadalupe, South Chicago; consultor at Claretian Provincial Council and many more.

Other featured speakers for Hispanic Heritage Month were the Hon. Miguel del Valle, State Senator in Illinois; Mr. Henry Ortiz, McDonald's Corporation; Art Velazquez, Aztec Corporation; Ms. Pat Pulido, Anheuser Busch; Miriam Santos, Treasurer of the City of Chicago; Hon. Rafael Frias, 1st Dist. Rep. and Hon. Edgar Lopez, 4th Dist. Rep. Illinois State Representatives; Lt. Charles R. Anderson, American Navy Pilot; Cpt. William Luna, USMC; and Dennis Britton, Editor of the Chicago Sun-Times.

Fourth Sports Leg

The Fourth Annual Sports Legend Banquet, sponsored by the Cougar Athletic Scholarship Fund Committee, was held November 9 in dining room B of the Robinson University Center. The banquet's purpose was to acknowledge the achievements of past athletes that have given back to their community while making great strides in their professional careers.

Jim Rose, sports anchor/reporter from Channel 7's Eyewitness News, served as the Master of Ceremonies.

The honorees included NBA Hall of Famer Walt Bellamy, an Atlanta Public Affairs Consultant who could not attend due to a delay in Atlanta.

However, John Rogers, Jr., former basketball star at Princeton University, president of Ariel Capital Management, and chairman of the Chicago Park District, was there to accept his honor. Elzie Higginbottom, a former University of Wisconsin track star and president of East Lake Management (a realty company) was also on hand.

The Outstanding Student-Athlete, Martha Gates, spoke of the importance of athletic scholarships. She said, "without athletic scholarships, many talented students that may not be able to afford a college education will be deprived of obtaining an education."

Al Avant, CSU's athletic director, and Theresa Fambro Hooks coordinated the event. "I feel that the banquet was a great success," Avant said. "This was an opportunity for the athletic department to reach out to the community."

Dear CSU Graduates and Continuing Students:

As I reflect on the past several years, I am pleased to report that Chicago State University is quickly becoming a model for success for public universities across the nation. With a record high of 9,500 students currently enrolled at Chicago State University, we are not only impressing national and local leaders with our rate of achievement, but students from across America are choosing Chicago State University as a first choice selection.

As you go on to achieve your goals, keep in mind you are a success story. You have received the necessary tools to reach your goals in your respective endeavors and can proudly say Chicago State University is an example of what works. In recognition of our success, the Illinois General Assembly passed a resolution this year which recognizes Chicago State as a premier urban institution in educating predominately African American students.

I know the road has been difficult for many graduates who have had to balance families, maintain jobs and obtain an education. I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate you and all of our graduates on your accomplishments and encourage you to remain persistent as you tackle future goals.

I would also like to convey to our returning students our desire to continue to search for ways to enhance the quality of education at Chicago State University. The intellectual role of this university is to demonstrate that we are a "Higher Education Urban Achievement Center," which means we should not only focus on the realities of the human condition, but support success before, during and after college.

Our mission also includes building bridges in the community. At Chicago State University, our students are our community. Community service is a vital part of this building process and students, faculty and staff can all become involved.

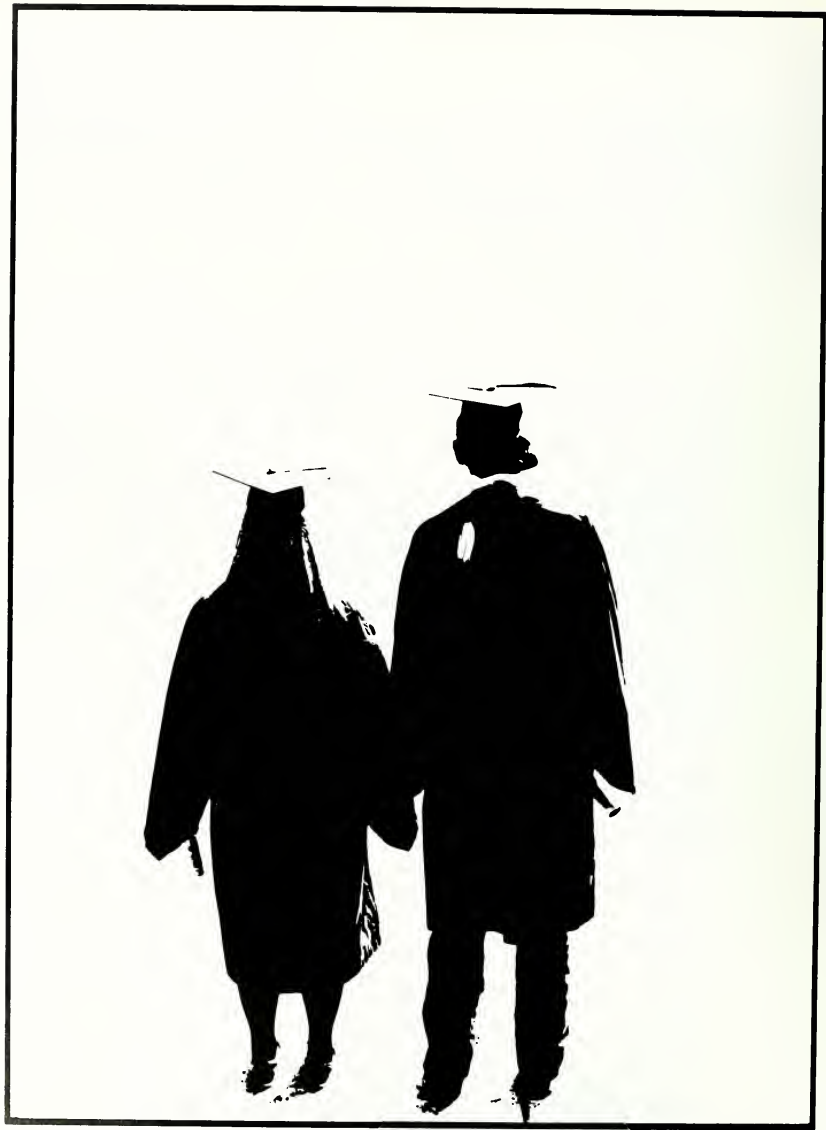

Finally, I am excited about the future prospects for Chicago State University. We are a family here and the work we have done has provided the foundation we need to become even more successful. As we work towards our separate goals, let us remember, there is no mountain we can not climb, no task too difficult to complete and no goal we can not reach. When we stand as a united front, there is nothing we can't accomplish.

Sincerely,

College of Business H

Daryl Freeman Grisham, president and chief executive officer of Parker House Sausage Company, was inducted into Chicago State University's College of Business Hall of Fame on Friday, September 24 at a banquet at the Westin Hotel, 909 N. Michigan.

Grisham was honored for his business accomplishments and community service, which span over 38 years.

"Mr. Grisham exhibits par excellence in terms of management acumen, and he personifies what is being taught in the classroom," said Barbara Roper, acting dean of CSU's College of Business.

"He is very impressed with CSU's business students, and he does not only encourage them to enter business, but seeks to provide them internships in line with the windows of opportunity under CSU's model for student success."

Grisham joined the Parker House Sausage Company, a pioneer processor of quality sausage products, as a sales promotion manager in 1954, and was promoted general sales manager two years later. He was elected to the company's board of directors in 1960 and became vice-president in 1961. Grisham was elected the company's president and CEO in 1969 following the death of the company's founder, Judge H. Parker, Sr., in

Dr. Cross introducing Daryl F. Grisham

"As a top official of the first meat-processing firm owned and operated by African Americans, Mr. Grisham is an important part of the economic development process of the south side of Chicago," said Katheryn Ward, secretary/treasurer of the board of the College of Business Hall of Fame. "He is an important force behind a pioneer meat company that was started in the Black community and stayed in the community."

Dr. Eldridge T. Freeman Jr., founder and chairperson of the Hall of Fame board, also said the induction of Grisham will help enhance the image of the College of Business and CSU. "I think he will bring additional recognition to the College of Business and to

CSU."

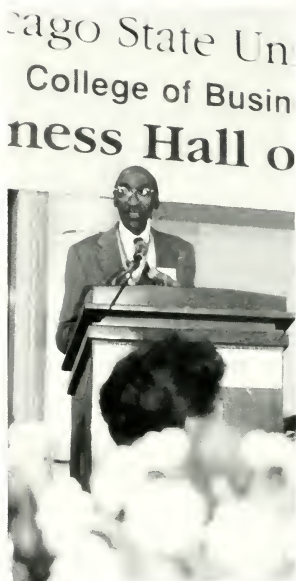

Freeman added that Grisham plans to be in the classroom to share his knowledge and experiences with business students.

Grisham attended Northwestern University, Chicago campus, and is a graduate of Alfred Tenyson Elementary School and John Marshall High School. During World War II, he served in the U.S. Air Force Aviation Cadet Corps at Tuskegee Army Air Field, Tuskegee, Ala. Grisham serves on the boards of many corporate, civil and community organizations, and has received several awards. In 1979, he received CSU's Presidential Citation for his services on the University's Advisory Council.

"The Black Writer, Culture,

Black writers, poets, essayists and playwrights nationwide converged on Chicago State University, October 22-23, for the institution's 3rd annual Black Writers Conference. The literary figures discussed the theme, "The Black Writer, Culture, Commitment and the Community."

Participants included Illinois Poet Laureate Gwendolyn Brooks, August Wilson, Sonia Sanchez, Haki Madhubuti, Ed Bullins, and Lucille Clifton. Other participants included Arnold Rampersad, Noemi Long Madgett, Sandra Jackson-Opoku, Joanne Gabbin, BeBe Moore Campbell, Raul Nino, Sandra Sharp, and Joyce Ann Joyce.

Each writer, poet or playwright discussed the conference theme from his or her own perspective at panel discussions on fiction, non-fiction, criticism, poetry, publishing, drama and poetry.

"We chose this theme because we meant to re-emphasize the inter-relationship that writers and the community have to each other," said Dr. Joyce, associate director of CSU's Gwendolyn Brooks Center.

Joyce said the Black Writers Conference was an effective tool to nurture potential writers in keeping with CSU's model for student success. "The most important thing is that the conference brings to campus writer-intellectuals that our students will not meet anywhere else. Any college or high school student aspiring to be a writer has the opportunity to meet and discuss various literary works with some of the best Black writers in the country." She also stated that the annual conference demonstrates CSU President Dolores Cross' determination to make CSU a literary gathering place for serious discussions of literary issues. "These yearly conferences make Chicago a historical landmark by re-emphasiz-

The writers conference culminated with book signing, cocktails and a banquet. Ed Bullins, Noami Long Madgett and Sonia Sanchez were honored with the years' contributors' awards from the Gwendolyn Brooks Center for Black Literature and Creative Writing.

The Black Male Forum

"From Law Breaker to Law Maker" was the topic of a lecture by State Rep. Coy Pugh (D-16) at Chicago State University on Tuesday, February 22, noon-2 p.m., in the Robinson University Center, Dining Room B.

The lecture was a part of CSU's Black Male Forum, a motivational speakers series featuring successful Black men from the Chicago area. Sponsored by CSU's Office of Admissions, Black male students as well as the University community to become enlightened by the wisdom of the elders.

Rep. Pugh's struggle to rehabilitate himself was featured in the January issue of Ebony Magazine entitled "From the Jailhouse to the Statehouse."

The Black Male Forum sought to establish a vehicle for quality communication between generations of Black men in an effort to help solve problems young Black men face as well as encouraging them to stay in school and earn their degrees.

Other featured speakers have included Prince Asiel Ben-Israel, international ambassador of the Hebrew Israelite Nation; State Rep. Donne E. Trotter; Dr. Carl Bell, a psychiatrist; Robert X lecturer/activist; and Sisi Mosby, researcher/columnist.

Approximately 250 students from 14 Chicago area high schools participated in the Chicago Model United Nations' 20th year conference at Chicago State University in the Business and Health Sciences Building, Room 102, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., November 9 and 10.

Founded by CSU History Professor, Robert J. Kovarik and a group of CSU students in 1973, the Chicago Model United Nations is designed to provide an opportunity for Chicago area high school students to increase their awareness about global issues. The program is set up to resemble the actual United Nations body.

On November 9, the special political and social committees addressed, "Nuclear Proliferation," "International Terrorism," Religious Intolerance," and the "Global Population Crisis." On November 10, the General Assembly reacted to the resolutions passed by the two committees. The "Security Council" had taken action on the situation in Iraq, Somalia and the former Yugoslavia, and reviewed the new role of the United Nations as a peacemaker.

"The fact that most of the participating high schools have been a part of CMUN consistently for over a decade attests to the quality of this simulation and the benefits it provides. Now that Chicago State is recognized as "Success University," we are proud to be one of the very few institutions of higher learning to provide such a valuable experience for the students of our region," said Dr. Dolores E. Cross, president of Chicago State University.

"The most rewarding aspect of this program is seeing how such a venture into practical education benefits not only the high school students who gain hands-on experience of dealing with world problems, but how our university students, many of them who plan to become teachers, learn to interrelate with high school students in such a dynamic situation," stated Dr. Kovarik.

CSU's 322nd Comm

Chicago State University granted a record breaking number of degrees, and honored Donna E. Shalala, U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services, and Eddie N. Williams, president of the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies, Washington, D.C. at its 322nd Commencement Exercises on June 4.

Shalala received a honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree at the 10 a.m. event, and Williams received his award at the 3 p.m. ceremony.

"CSU is honoring Shalala and Williams for their outstanding contributions to society," said President Cross. "Dr. Shalala, the first woman to head a Big Ten University as Chancellor of the University of Wisconsin at Madison, has distinguished herself with two decades of experiences in management, social policy creation and analysis, and nationally recognized leadership skills."

Among her achievements at the University of Wisconsin, Shalala promoted diversity in the student body and staffs, spearheaded a campus-wide smoking ban in 1991, and took measures to curb alcohol abuse among students.

As assistant secretary in the Department of Housing and Urban Development in the Carter Administration, she oversaw the establishment of funding for battered women's shelters and the commissioning of special studies of the housing needs of families headed by women.

Shalala's professional experience includes chairing the Children's Defense Fund, and serving as a professor at various colleges and universities such as Columbia and Yale. She received her bachelor's degree from the Western College for Women and her PH.D. from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

Cross also noted that Williams, who has been president of the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies since July 1972, has accomplished a lot. "He has a wealth of knowledge and experience in the fields of public affairs, policy study, foreign relations and the federal legislative process," she said.

A beaming CSU graduate.

Williams' professional experience include serving as vice president for public affairs and director of the Center for Policy Study at the University of Chicago; working as a Foreign Service Reserve Officer in the U.S. Department of State in Washington, D.C.; and serving as a staff assistant to the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Williams' professional affiliations include holding offices as the vice chairman for the National Endowment for Democracy and the Riggs National Bank. He is also chairman of the Pew Partnerships for Civic Change and secretary-treasurer of the Black Leadership Forum.

Williams received his bachelor's degree in journalism from the University of Illinois in 1954 and did graduate study in political science at Atlanta and Howard Universities between 1958 and 1960. He holds a DHL (Honorary) from Bowie State University and a LL.D. (Honorary) from the University of the District of Columbia.

20th Annual Senior Citizen's

The 20th Annual Senior Citizen Pre-Thanksgiving Dinner was held on Saturday, November 20, 1993. This has been a traditional dinner in which senior citizens are honored for their outstanding contributions to the community and their support for education. The dinner drew many senior citizens from the community and from across Chicago. They enjoyed musical selections from the Chicago State University Choir and Chorus & Jazz Combo. The seniors were given booklets and pamphlets that informed them of their rights and/or privileges as senior citizens. Along with the informational material they were also given a small gift.

The senior citizens were escorted to and from the dinner by Chicago State's ROTC personnel. They were greeted and seated by the CSU welcoming committee. They were served dinner by CSU administrators, professors, staff, and students. The menu consisted of turkey, stuffing, mashed potatoes, gravy and the ever popular sweet potato pie.

Educate Your Body

4th Annual 5K Walk/Run

The racers are off and running.

More than 500 runners and walkers were expected to participate in Chicago State University's fourth annual "Educate Your Body" 5K Run/Walk on Saturday, September 18, beginning at 9 a.m. The event was sponsored by Hinckley & Schmitt, Gatorade and Diet Pepsi. Hinckley & Schmitt water was served at the start and finish and at two aid stations.

A 15-minute aerobic workout preceded the race which started at the southeast side of the campus.

Designed for people to test their endurance, and build CSU's bridges with the community, participants ran or walked a three mile course around Chicago State's campus.

Winners received first, second and third place prizes in several categories. T-shirts were given to all who completed the run/walk. A post-race party was held in the track area. Masseurs were on hand at pre and post race clinics to give massages. Booths were also set up by community vendors and CSU organizations to showcase their products and programs.

CSU President Dolores Cross, a marathoner who initiated the 5K Run/Walk, is a strong believer in health and fitness as a lifestyle.

"I believe in the theory of a healthy body and healthy mind," she says. "Providing a good role model is important, and I feel if I stay strong enough, other people are going to emulate and stay strong."

Pre-registration for the 5K Run/Walk was $10 for the general public and $5 for CSU students, staff and faculty. Registration on the day of the race was $12.

Proceeds from the event supported the pre-college sports initiative programs operated by the Office of Special Events, and assists programs and scholarships in the College of Nursing and Allied Health Professions, the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and the Athletic Department.

Craig Hodges

From Bull to Cougar

Sports Caster Jim Rose (L) and Craig Hodges.

How do you change a raging Bull into a growling Cougar? By naming Craig Hodges head coach for the CSU Men's Basketball team. Contracts were not renewed for Head Coach Rick Pryor and Assistant Coach Calvin Pierce, after four losing seasons at CSU.

The search for a new head coach ended when Craig

Hodges, former Chicago Bulls player, was chosen. The move should benefit the team, which has not had a winning season since then Head Coach Bob Hallberg led them to a 22-6 record in 1986-87. From then it has been a swift drop to the bottom. With Hodges as head coach, the Cougars could be looking at some playoff games.

All-Star Player

Mark Winston

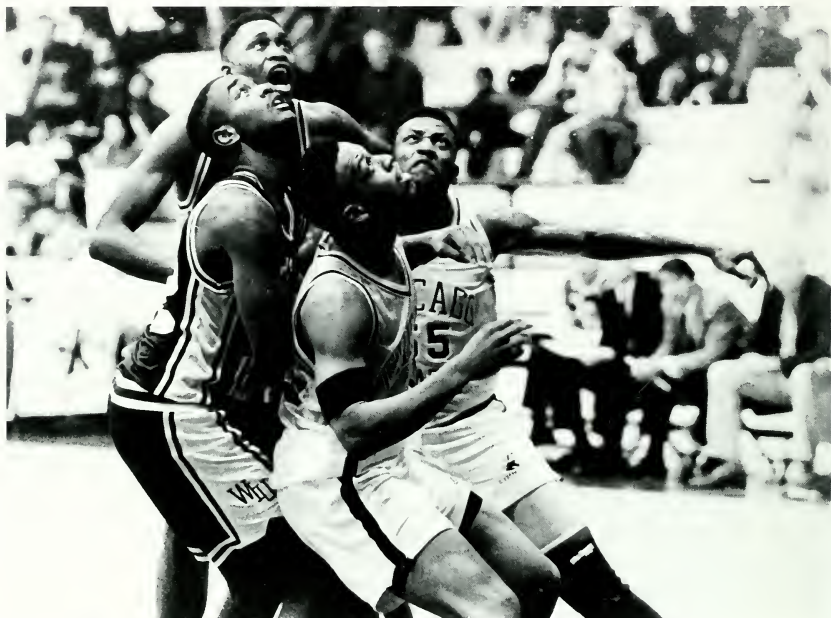

Mark Winston catcher from 1990-93 for Cougar Baseball signed with the St. Paul (MN) Saints of the Northern League, after a tryout at Triton Junior College. The Saints are an independent AA level team.

While with the Cougars in 1993, Winston finished 2nd among NCAA Division I hitters (.465) and was named to the NCAA Division I All Midwest Region Team. He was CSU career leader in seven of ten major offensive categories.

Players on the St. Paul Saints include former Chicago Cubs 1st baseman, Leon Durham and St. Xavier University outfielder, Nolan Lane. Winston and Lane both attended Mendel High School in the CSU neighborhood.

A funny thing happened to me on the way to the coliseum, I was placed as editor-in-chief again. I was managing editor for a while, but was set in the hot seat for old times sake. This was a big challenge for me as I was nearing the completion of my master's degree in counseling, and also had to do over a hundred hours of practicum work. And to top that, I was also doing an internship. Talk about stretching yourself.

I knew I couldn't have done this without the help of my small and dedicated staff, who are also the best friends a person can have. I would like to thank you one and all, and congratulate you on a job well done. Thanks Carol, Keren, Melissa, and George. It's been a blast. Also, thanks to Mr. Garner and Ray Gilgenbach.

As for me, I will be moving on. Best of luck to George, who will be the new Editor-in-chief for the 1994-95 edition of the Emblem. For the staff that will continue here at CSU, keep up the good work and best of luck in your studies.
